

Split Infinitives

When an adverb or another word is inserted between the word "to" and the verb in an infinitive, it is called a split infinitive.

Directions: Rewrite each sentence to correct the split infinitive.

1. I will plan to often call you.
2. I don't think I know what to really do.
3. I hope to honestly do better this year.
4. I will need to methodically work on this.
5. Everyone has agreed to solemnly keep my secret.
6. I didn't want to actually watch that program.
7. I hope I will be able to successfully sell these books.
8. Kevin agreed to cheerfully give us a hand.
9. Mary volunteered to enthusiastically read to the children.
10. He hurried to completely finish his work.