Is, Am, Are

The verb to be can be an action verb, expressing a state of being, or an auxiliary (or helping) verb.

- Is is the present tense, third person singular form of to be.
- Am is the present tense, first person singular form of to be.
- Are is the present tense, third person plural form of to be.

Write two sentences using the word is as directed.

1. (as an action verb)

2. (as an auxilliary verb)

Write two sentences using the word am as directed.

1. (as an action verb)

2. (as an auxilliary verb)

Write two sentences using the word are as directed.

1. (as an action verb)

2. (as an auxilliary verb).