

ANSWERS

The idea to dedicate a specific time to reflect upon and celebrate black history was first proposed in 1926. A historian named Carter G. Woodson chose a week in February for the observance because it was close to the birthday of both Abraham Lincoln and Frederick Douglass.

1976

Theme will vary.