

ANSWERS

To speak in a way that takes your audience into account and is most likely to communicate to them and achieve the effect you want to have.

audience demographics

what they already know about the topic their level of interest in the topic what they are going to do with the information what their objections might be what appeals would most resonate with them additional answers are possible