

Transitions of Location/Place

Transition words are used in a sentence to connect two ideas. They join clauses, sentences, paragraphs, or entire sections of writing together to show a relationship between them. Different transition words signal different kinds of relationships. One kind of relationship that transition words can signal between ideas is location or place. Transitions of location/place can sometimes overlap with or into transitions of time and sequence. Examples of transitions of location/place are:

- |               |                   |         |           |
|---------------|-------------------|---------|-----------|
| in the middle | in the background | near    | across    |
| above         | under             | further | alongside |
| between       | beyond            | down    | beneath   |
| throughout    | on top of         | into    | among     |

DIRECTIONS: Read the assigned text. Identify transitions of location/place. Write them below. Are the words being used to signal location/place or time/sequence? How do you know?

Transition Word	Being Used to Signal:

