

ANSWERS

At the beginning, the tone is critical and disapproving. Both Lockwood and Nelly disapprove of the people around them and/or in the case of Nellie, decisions they have made.

At the end, the tone is hopeful. Nelly says: "The crown of all my wishes will be the union of those two." Lockwood calls Cathy, Edgar, and Heathcliff "sleepers in that quiet earth."