

Inferences

Making an inference means drawing a conclusion based on a combination of reasoning and evidence. Good writing allows readers to infer some things from the text, rather than making everything explicit. Inferring something is also known as "reading between the lines."

DIRECTIONS: Read the assigned text. Make three inferences. Complete the chart to explain your inferences.

My Inference	Text Evidence	My Reasoning