

ANSWERS

A primary source is a text that was created during the time period which is being studied. It is an original source of information that conveys information about the topic from someone with firsthand experience with it.

PROs	CONs
<ul style="list-style-type: none">• they can resolve a specific research question• they are more accurate• they provide up to date information• you "own" the information	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• they can be too close to a subject• they can be time-consuming to analyze and interpret• they are limited to a particular place and time and particular participants