

ANSWERS

1. A boy learns to believe in Santa Clause after a magic trains takes him to visit the North Pole on Christmas Eve.
2. A boy is laying in bed on Christmas Eve, wondering if there is a Santa Clause and starting to lose his belief. Then the Polar Express stops in front of his house and calls him aboard.
3. The train takes the boy and many other children on a long journey across many landscapes to the North Pole. There, they see all the elves gathering in the square. Santa is about to give the first gift of Christmas to one of the children.
4. Santa gives the first gift of Christmas to the boy, who chooses one of the silver bells from the reindeers' harnesses.
5. The boy loses the bell. The train carries the boyo home.
6. The boy finds the bell in a package under the tree on Christmas morning with a note from Santa. The boy's belief in Santa is solidified and he never stops believing, though others around him do.