

ANSWERS WILL VARY

Although there was some sympathy with the confederacy, no other country ever recognized it as an independent country. The Emancipation Proclamation eventually brought European public opinion in favor of the Union as abolition became one of the goals of a Northern victory.