

ANSWERS

The play has an ambiguous tone. The characters frequently speak in a way that is random or contradictory. It's difficult to tell if they are serious or joking. The ambiguity makes audiences just a little uncomfortable because they aren't sure how to interpret what is going on; this makes them more likely to laugh.