

ANSWERS

formally admitting a person to public office to choose (someone) to hold public office or some other position by voting a solemn promise, often invoking a divine witness, regarding one's future action or behavior a position of public authority or service relating to an authority or public body and its duties, actions, and responsibilities the elected head of a republic a formal public occasion celebrating a specific event or occasion