

ANSWERS

Verbal irony is when the speaker intends that something other than the literal meaning of their words be understood.

Situational irony is when a character's actions or the events in a story have the opposite result of what is expected.

Dramatic irony is when the audience knows more than the characters.

They all contrast an audience's expectations with reality.