

Reaching Out for Help

It is okay to need special support from the people in your life when you are grieving, and it's okay to ask for help. What do you need the most right now? Write or draw your answers.

What I need from my family

What I need from my friends

What I need from others