Anecdotes

An anecdote is a short story about a personal experience, often one that is humorous or entertaining. An anecdote has three parts:

- The introduction connects the anecdote to the conversation you are having and sets the scene.
- In the main part of the anecdote, tell what happens. Be sure to include relevant details about anyone involved in the story.
- The ending tells how things turned out, or what the result of the situation was.

DIRECTIONS: Choose one of the subjects below. Think of a personal anecdote you could share about that subject. Write your anecdote below.
