I loaned John some money.	Yes
I applied for a loan.	No
The show will begin momentarily.	Yes
The light momentarily made everything visible.	No
Kent will call momentarily.	Yes
Will you join us? I think not.	Yes
I will not join you.	No

The word loan should not be used as a verb, lend is the relevant verb.

Momentarily means "for a moment," but it is often used to mean "in a moment" instead.

Some people believe that you should not end a sentence with the word "not." Others do not recognize this as an issue.
