

Gathering New Information

Use a technique called clustering to help you organize new information about a topic as you gather it. Clustering is a way to sort information as you find it by putting like things together and identifying different subtopics that fall under a single topic. Use the organizer below to keep track of what you are learning, or use it as a model to create your own clustering diagram to help you understand new information.

SUBTOPIC: _____

SUBTOPIC: _____

MAIN TOPIC: _____

SUBTOPIC: _____

SUBTOPIC: _____

SUBTOPIC: _____

