Brainstorm Your Premise

The premise is the starting point of every writing project. It is the expression in a single sentence of a complete idea of what the work will be about.

A good way to get ideas down onto paper before you start to write is to brainstorm. Brainstorming means jotting down any ideas that come into your mind during a set period of time. You can set an alarm on your phone for five or ten minutes to time your brainstorming session.

When your brainstorming session is over, look at your notes. Are there any patterns? Does anything stand out to you as a good starting point for formulating a premise? Write the first draft of your premise below.
