What is Friendship Day All About?

Friendship Day is a special day to celebrate our friends and show them how much they mean to us. It is a day to appreciate the bonds of friendship that bring joy, support, and sparkle into our lives. It's a day to do nice things for our friends, tell them how much we care, and thank them for being in our lives.

The idea of Friendship Day was first introduced by Joyce Hall, the founder of Hallmark Cards, in 1930. He chose the date August 2 for this new holiday. But it didn't really catch on until Dr. Ramon Artemio Bracho proposed the idea of a World Friendship Crusade in Paraguay in 1958. This was a campaign that aimed to foster a culture of peace through friendship. In 1997, the United Nations named Winnie the Pooh as the world's Ambassador of Friendship, and in 2011, the United Nations officially recognized July 30th as International Friendship Day, although many countries, like the United States and India, celebrate it on the first Sunday of August.

On Friendship Day, people do many wonderful things to celebrate their friendships. They often exchange friendship bracelets, cards, and gifts. They might write letters expressing how much their friends mean to them, or they could share a meal together. Some people make special plans like going on a trip with their friends, while others celebrate by doing their favorite activities together, like playing games or watching movies. Schools often host special events where students can participate in activities that promote friendship and understanding.

Technology also plays a part in Friendship Day celebrations. Many people use social media to post pictures, videos, or messages about their friends. It's a chance to celebrate not just the friends who live close by, but also those who live far away.

Remember, Friendship Day is not just about celebrating our friends but also about being a good friend ourselves. So, let's spread love, kindness, and friendship, not just on Friendship Day, but every day!
