

ANSWERS

1. "This statement is false," or "Everything I say is a lie."
2. The paradox is that the statement contains an inherent impossibility. If the statement IS false, than it is actually true. If everything the speaker says really is a lie, then when they say everything they say is a lie, then that is actually NOT a lie.
3. Answers will vary