The Three Sisters of Fate

Answer Key

1. The Three Sisters of Fate, also known as the Moirai, were magical sisters who controlled the destiny of everyone, from gods to creatures.
2. The job of the oldest sister, Clotho, was to spin the thread of life for every person and creature on her magical spinning wheel. The moment she began spinning, a new life started.
3. Lachesis, the middle sister, determined how long each life would be by measuring the length of the thread that Clotho spun.
4. Atropos, the youngest sister, was in charge of cutting the thread of life with her special pair of scissors, signifying the end of a person or creature's life.
5. The Three Sisters of Fate lived high above the clouds, where they could see everyone and everything. They had the power to control the destiny of all beings, and not even the most powerful gods could change or avoid their decisions.
