

ANSWERS

1. An archaism is a word or expression that is no longer regularly used, or which is only used in specific fields or studies.
2. ancient
3. Some places where you are likely to encounter archaisms are:
 - Older literature – for example, since Shakespeare wrote his plays in the language of his day, it contains many words and phrases which are archaisms to us
 - The legal field – words commonly encountered in legal documents, like heretofore, hereunto, and thereof are all archaisms.
4. will vary