

ANSWERS

A monologue is speech made by one character to other characters in a literary or dramatic work.

Dialogue is when characters talk to each other.

A soliloquy is a speech that a character makes aloud when they are talking to themselves.

An aside is when a character pauses during the dramatic action to speak directly to the audience.