

Name _____

February Writing Prompts

1. Presidents' Day - Imagine you're the President of the United States for a day in February. Write about what you would do, where you would go, and the changes you'd make.
2. Valentine's Day - If you could give a valentine to anyone in history, who would it be and what would your message say?
3. Groundhog Day - The groundhog predicts either an early spring or six more weeks of winter. Write a funny conversation between you and the groundhog about his prediction.
4. Black History Month - Choose an African American hero from history. Write about their life and why they inspire you.
5. Winter Wonders - It's the coldest day of February. Describe what it's like outside, and what you'd do to stay warm and have fun.
6. February Foods - February is National Cherry Month. Write a story about a magical cherry tree that grants wishes.
7. Friendship - February is a month of love and friendship. Describe a perfect day spent with your best friend.
8. Fantasy February - Imagine February is a magical month where it rains candy instead of water. Describe the scene and what would happen at school.
9. Leap Year - If you were given an extra day in February because of a leap year, what would you do with that special day?
10. Letter Writing - Write a letter to February, telling the month what you love about it, and asking any questions you might have for it.
11. A Winter's Tale - Write a short story about animals preparing for the end of winter. What challenges do they face, and how do they overcome them?
12. February Traditions - Some families have special traditions for February. If you could create a new family tradition for this month, what would it be?
13. Heartfelt Stories - Valentine's Day is often symbolized by hearts. Write a story where hearts have magical powers.
14. Snow Day Adventures - Your school is closed due to a massive snowstorm. Describe your perfect snow day from morning to night.
15. Olympic Dreams - February often features the Winter Olympics. If you could participate in any winter sport, which one would you choose and why? Describe your journey to the gold medal.