March Writing Prompts

1. St. Patrick's Day - You discover a leprechaun hiding in your backyard. Write about the conversation you have with him and the adventure that follows.
2. March Madness - If animals held their own basketball tournament, which species would be the top teams, and who would win? Describe one exciting game.
3. Spring Beginnings - March marks the start of spring. Describe the first signs of spring you notice, and how it makes you feel.
4. Women's History Month - Choose a famous woman from American history. Write about her achievements and how she inspires you.
5. March Winds - The saying goes, "March comes in like a lion and goes out like a lamb." Write a story where March's winds have magical properties.
6. Dr. Seuss's Birthday - If you could jump into any Dr. Seuss book, which one would it be? Describe your day in that whimsical world.
7. World Water Day - Imagine you're a drop of water traveling through the water cycle in March. Write about your journey from the sky to the ground and back again.
8. Daylight Saving Time - Overnight, you've been given an extra hour of daylight. How would you spend that additional hour?
9. Spring Break Adventures - School's out for a week! Write about an imaginary trip you'd take during spring break, and who you'd bring along.
10. Plant a Flower Day - If you could grow a magical flower that had special powers, what would it look like, and what powers would it have?
11. In Like a Lion - Imagine you wake up, and March has turned everyone into lions! How does your day go with everyone roaring around?
12. Pi Day - It's 3.14, Pi Day! Suddenly, pies start raining from the sky. Describe the delicious (and messy!) scene.
13. National Reading Month - You find a magical book in your school library that can transport you to any story. Where do you go, and what happens?
14. Kite Tales - March is a perfect month for flying kites. Write about a day when your kite pulls you up into the clouds for an adventure.
15. Starry Night - March has clear skies for stargazing. One night, a shooting star lands in your backyard, but it's not a rock—it's an alien! What happens next?
