

World Braille Day

Answer Key

Correction Marks

Once upon a time in a town called Brailleburg, there lived a curious young girl named Lily who loved to explore the world with her fingers. You see, Lily was blind, but that didn't stop her from discovering the wonders around her.

One sunny day, Lily's grandfather told her about a magical language called Braille. With Braille, people who couldn't see could read and write using their sense of touch. Lily's eyes sparkled with excitement, and she asked her grandfather to teach her this enchanting language.

As days turned into weeks, Lily practiced diligently, running her fingertips over raised dots and lines. She learned to read stories, write letters, and even share secrets with her friends using Braille. Lily realized that Braille was like a key that unlocked a world of knowledge and imagination.

With her newfound skills, Lily shared the magic of Braille with her friends and the entire town of Brailleburg. Together, they learned that differences could be bridges to incredible adventures, and that with determination and the touch of a finger, they could read the world in their own unique way.
