

Name _____

World Refugee Day

Answer Key - Correction Marks

The U.S. Refugee admissions Program (USRAP) is a humanitarian program operated by the U.S. government that facilitates the resettlement of refugees from around the world to the United States. Established under the Immigration and Nationality Act, USRAP is managed be the U.S. Department of State in collaboration with various government agencies, international organizations like the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR), and non-profit organizations known as resettlement agencies. Its primary goal is to provide protection and support to refugees who have fled they're home countries due to persecution, conflict, or other forms of violence.

USRAP begins with the referral of eligible refugees by UNHCR or, in some cases, U.S. embassies abroad. The program then gets through a rigorous vetting process to determine eligibility and security screening to insure that refugees admitted to the United States do not pose a threat. Once cleared, refugees are matched with one of the nine resettlement agencies in the U.S., which provide them with initial housing, assistance in finding employment, and access to social services. USRAP not only offers refuge to those in need but also promotes America's humanitarian values and global leadership in providing protection and assistance to the worlds most vulnerable populations.

Complete Passage

The U.S. Refugee Admissions Program (USRAP) is a humanitarian program operated by the U.S. government that facilitates the resettlement of refugees from around the world to the United States. Established under the Immigration and Nationality Act, USRAP is managed by the U.S. Department of State in collaboration with various government agencies, international organizations like the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR), and non-profit organizations known as resettlement agencies. Its primary goal is to provide protection and support to refugees who have fled their home countries due to persecution, conflict, or other forms of violence.

USRAP begins with the referral of eligible refugees by UNHCR or, in some cases, U.S. embassies abroad. The program then goes through a rigorous vetting process to determine eligibility and security screening to ensure that refugees admitted to the United States do not pose a threat. Once cleared, refugees are matched with one of the nine resettlement agencies in the U.S., which provide them with initial housing, assistance in finding employment, and access to social services. USRAP not only offers refuge to those in need but also promotes America's humanitarian values and global leadership in providing protection and assistance to the world's most vulnerable populations.