

Name _____

National Ice Cream Day

National Ice Cream Day is a delightful observance celebrated in the United States on the third Sunday of July each year, and it is part of National Ice Cream Month, which was established by President Ronald Reagan in 1984. This day is dedicated to indulging in the frozen, creamy delight that is ice cream. It's an occasion for ice cream lovers to savor their favorite flavors, whether in a cone, cup, or as part of various delectable desserts.

On National Ice Cream Day, ice cream shops often offer special discounts, promotions, and new flavors to entice people to enjoy this beloved treat. Families and friends commonly come together to share the joy of ice cream, making it a fun and delicious summer tradition. Whether enjoyed at a local ice cream parlor or in the comfort of one's home, National Ice Cream Day is a sweet celebration that brings people together to savor the simple pleasures of life.

Directions: This passage has 6 errors. Find the errors and correct them.

In a cozy little neighborhood, not far from where you live, there were a friendly ice cream truck named Scoopy. Scoopy was not just an ordinary ice cream truck; it had a magical secret. Every summer, when the Sun shone its brightest, Scoopy would roll through the streets, jingling its cheerful melody, and kids would gathering around, eager for a scoop of the enchanted ice cream it served.

One sunny afternoon, a group of friends decided to visit Scoopy. As they approached, they noticed something unusual? The ice cream truck was sparkling with a rainbows of colors, and the flavors seemed to shimmer like gems. The friends chose their scoops, and as they taken their first bites, something magical happened. Each flavor transformed into the thing they loved most. One friend's ice cream turned into a fluffy teddy bear, another's into a playful puppy, and another's into a book of magical adventures. They realized that Scoopy's ice cream wasn't just delicious; it made their dreams come true! From that day on, the neighborhood kids knew that when the ice cream truck with the jingling melody arrived, their sweetest dreams were just a scoop away.