

ANSWERS

Lincoln began his political career taking the position that he was "antislavery," opposed to the expansion of slavery, but not calling for immediate emancipation. After the Battle of Gettysburg, he issued the Emancipation Proclamation, which freed all slaves in those states that were in rebellion..