

ANSWERS

1. An invective is language intended to insult or offend.
2. Invective is communicated through both language and tone.
3. High invective uses formal, creative language. Low invective features rude and offensive imagery.
4. Invective can be found in literature, speeches, and everyday, real life conversation.
5. The purpose of invective is to arouse negative emotions, both in the reader or audience and in the individual at whom the invective is aimed.