

ANSWERS

1. vernacular is how people speak in a general sense; slang/colloquialism is the vernacular of a particular group, especially a youth sub-culture.
2. vernacular is how people speak in a general sense; jargon is the language of people that work in a specific field or profession.
3. vernacular is how people speak in a general sense; dialect shows the actual sounds of a person's speech; dialect is usually specific to a region or a culture.