

ANSWERS

1. Metonymy is a figure of speech in which words are replaced with associated or related words.
2. everyday conversation, stories, poems, plays, speeches, songs, and movies. Metonymy can be used to refer to individuals by their organizations and associations like hospitals, schools, governments, and sports teams. Metonyms can be nicknames for places, people, and projects.
3. It is not appropriate to use metonymy when literal writing is required, for example, in works of science.