

ANSWERS

Vernacular

everyday speech

there are different vernaculars depending on who is talking:
people from different regions have different ways of speaking, and so to people of different ages, cultures, or social classes typically found in fiction can include slang, idioms, etc.

Both Vernacular and Formal

both are diction

both are appropriate in specific circumstances

Formal

formal writing is consistent and follows the same rules no matter who is speaking or writing, where they are from, their age, etc.

typically found in formal situations like business correspondence, cover letters, etc.

never includes slang, idioms, etc.