Ramadan Cloze Reading Passage Answer Key

Ramadan is a special holiday celebrated by Muslims all around the world. It lasts for about 30 days and is based on the Islamic calendar, which follows the moon. During Ramadan, Muslims fast from sunrise to sunset. This means they don't eat or drink anything during the daytime. Fasting helps them focus on their faith and think about those who don't have enough food.

At night, after the sun sets, Muslims gather with their families to eat a meal called Iftar. It often begins with dates and water, which is how the Prophet Muhammad broke his fast. After Iftar, many Muslims go to the mosque for special prayers called Taraweeh.

Ramadan is not just about fasting; it's also a time to be kind and generous. People are encouraged to give to charity and help those in need. At the end of Ramadan, there is a big celebration called Eid al-Fitr. On this day, families and friends come together to share food, give gifts, and enjoy each other's company.

Ramadan is a time of reflection, self-discipline, and togetherness. It reminds people to be grateful for what they have and to help others whenever they can.
