

ANSWERS

1. The jury finds Tom Robinson guilty, in spite of Atticus' best efforts to defend him.
2. They realize that the world does not always adhere to the morals with which they have been raised.
3. Tom Robinson is shot trying to escape from prison. Scout tries to make sense out of the injustice. Bob Ewell attacks Scout and Jem, and Boo Radly comes out and stabs Ewell, killing him.
4. The sheriff protects Boo because he knows he will probably be misunderstood like Tom Robinson was and not receive justice at trial.
