

Name _____

Thread Hijack

Instructions - A spelling glitch has corrupted one vocabulary term in every message. Circle the damaged word, then write its correct form on the line beneath it.

Avery: Did anyone finish the presentation on political enfranchisement? _____

Jordan: Almost. I'm revising the section about government hegemony. _____

Mina: The opening paragraph still sounds too grandiloquent. _____

Theo: I can make it more direct without trivializing the issue. _____

Avery: Good. We also need evidence to substantiate our main claim. _____

Jordan: I found a reliable source that explains the historical constituency. _____

Mina: Does it address the growing economic disparity too? _____

Theo: Yes, but one quotation is so abstruse that nobody will understand it. _____

Avery: Replace it with a more cogent explanation. _____

Jordan: I also noticed a contrivance in the author's argument. _____

Mina: The conclusion should acknowledge our own fallibility instead of pretending we are always correct. _____

Theo: Agreed. That will make the analysis seem less dogmatic. _____

Avery: Can someone check the paragraph about media dissemination? _____

Jordan: I will. The wording may accidentally exacerbate the controversy. _____

Mina: Let's keep the tone firm but not vindictive. _____

Theo: Perfect. I'll upload the final version unless anyone has a serious grievance. _____