

Name _____

The Totally Unbelievable Times Answer Key

Robot Joins the School Orchestra - (6 spelling errors)

A small robot surprised students when it arrived for orchestra rehersal on Monday. Its metal hands moved with amazing efficiency, and it played every note with perfect punctuasion. The conductor called the performance exceptionel, although one musician complained that the robot's glowing eyes were a little bizzarre. School officials are now considering its admission into the group.

Story 1: rehearsal, efficiency, punctuation, exceptional, bizarre, admission

Giant Sandwich Blocks Main Street - 7 spelling errors

Traffic stopped when a magnificent sandwich rolled out of a restaurant and became a huge obstacle in the road. A local chauffer tried to drive around it, but the sandwich stretched across the entire boundry of the intersection. Police described the event as a strange phenominon and asked the public to remain calm. The mayor promised an immediate investegation and warned residents not to exagerate the story.

Story 2: magnificent, obstacle, chauffeur, boundary, phenomenon, investigation, exaggerate

Anonymous Goat Wins Science Fair - (5 spelling errors)

An anonomous goat entered the regional science fair with a project about plant ecoligy. Its display included a detailed hypothesis, several graphs, and a miniature greenhouse. Judges praised the goat's perseverence and called the project highly credable.

Story 3: anonymous, ecology, hypothesis, perseverance, credible