

Name _____

The Viral Rumor Desk

Editorial Task - Each bizarre report contains a stated number of misspelled vocabulary terms. Circle every error, then record the correct spellings beneath the article.

Moonlight Causes Citywide Traffic Rebellion (5 spelling errors)

Officials blamed an unusually bright celestiel event for a night of transportation confusion. Drivers became apprehensiv when traffic signals began flashing in no recognizable pattern. One engineer offered a plausable explanation involving electromagnetic interference, while another dismissed the theory as absurdety. The mayor requested a comprehensive investigasion before issuing a public statement.

Corrections

|  |  |  |
|--|--|--|
|  |  |  |
|  |  |  |

Billionaire Opens Museum of Completely Useless Inventions (6 spelling errors)

A wealthy entreprenur has opened a museum devoted to inventions that solve no practical problem. Exhibits include a self-folding napkin, an automatic pencil sharpener for pens, and an enormous adhesiv umbrella. Critics called the collection an amusing aberation from traditional museum design. The owner defended the project with remarkable eloquance, claiming that creativity should not be limited by pragmatick thinking or public skepticism.

Corrections

|  |  |  |
|--|--|--|
|  |  |  |
|  |  |  |

Scientists Discover a Plant That Argues Back (8 spelling errors)

Researchers studying an indigenous plant reported that it appeared to respond aggressively when criticized. The team first assumed the reaction was a simple stimulus, but repeated testing suggested a more complex cognitive process. One scientist proposed that the plant's behavior might be an evolutionary adaptaion, while another called that conclusion fallacious. The laboratory installed new equipment to measure chemical difussion, cellular activity, and electrical oscilation. Although the results remain inconclusiv, the discovery has generated considerable scientific controversy.

Corrections

|  |  |  |  |
|--|--|--|--|
|  |  |  |  |
|  |  |  |  |